IMPORTANT FACTS ABOUT SKIN AGING

The SKIN AGING PROCESS is characterised by

- a decrease in the skin's hydration capacity
- an accompanying reduction of cell turnover
- a loss of elasticity and turgor (decrease in elastic and collagen fibres)
- a continuous decline in the skin's hyaluronic acid content, which means that the natural element of the extracellular matrix is then lacking
- the development of dry, pale skin with more and more fine lines, wrinkles and hanging tissue.
